Illinois Community Action Network

Social Entrepreneurship in Action

A White Paper Examining Prospects for Program Development

DECEMBER 2013
The project scope focused on identifying opportunities, needs and gaps in ICADC’s and to some extent IACAA, IVCA’s programs and services to support earned income and social enterprise development within the network of 40 Community Action Agencies.

From September through December 2013, the primary project activities included:

1. Interviews with IACAA, IVCA, and ICADC staff and leadership
2. Comprehensive review of strategy documents and program materials
3. IACAA Earned income and social enterprise member survey
4. Collaboration support and development for Rockford deconstruction social enterprise
Social Impact

Social enterprise
Business whose primary purpose is to address a social issue.

Social entrepreneurship
The field or movement of individuals who seek to solve societal issues through innovative practices.

Social entrepreneurs
The individuals who start, develop, lead or manage social enterprises or other innovative companies or organizations.

Earned income
Revenue generated from sources other than grants and donations. Examples: Fees, product sales, rentals.

Financial sustainability
The ability to secure predictable revenue to support organizational needs.

Non-traditional revenue streams
Income that is not typical for that particular nonprofit organization. Example: Income from a catering business started by a Head Start program that serves meals.
Question:
Is there a role for ICADC to support Community Action Agencies interested in earned income and social enterprise development?

Findings:
1. Earned income and social enterprise programming is an essential next step to advance ICADC and IACAA’s comprehensive community and economic development strategy for Illinois.

2. Financing for Community Action Agency-initiated business and social entrepreneurial ventures is an opportunity to support new earned income and social enterprise activity.

3. ICADC and IACAA’s current organizational capacities are well suited to earned income and social enterprise program development support.

4. Leadership teams’ commitment to innovation and impact complements new program development.
ICADC Strategic Plan

Question:
Do earned income and social enterprise revenue development fit within ICADC’s mission?

Findings:
A review of the 2012 strategic plan indicates this alignment in the key areas of mission, vision and strategic goals and objectives

Furtherance of Strategic Plan
✓ Workforce development opportunities
✓ Job creation possibilities
✓ Long-term organizational stabilization
✓ Individual and family economic self-sufficiency attainment
✓ Community development perpetuation

MISSION:
The Illinois Community Action Development Corporation is a statewide community development organization that works through the community action network to create affordable housing, create jobs and engage in financial opportunities that strengthen communities and the wellbeing of individuals and families in need.
